Payment account switching is conducted exclusively upon written authorisation whereby, the payment services user authorises the transferring payment services provider to undertake all or individual activities pertaining to payment account switching which said services providers are obliged to carry out in line with applicable regulations governing payment services. This authorisation may be used by the payment services user to identify standing orders, direct debit mandates, incoming credit transfers and other payment services that are to be switched to the new payment account, provided that the receiving payment service provider provides these services. By the authorisation, the payment service user specifies the date from which standing orders and direct debits are to be executed from the new payment account, whereby this date shall be at least six business days from the date on which the receiving payment services provider received the documentation from the transferring payment services provider.

The Bank shall provide the payment service user information referred to herein, upon their request and free of charge.

The Bank shall provide the payment services user or make readily available information on any existing standing orders or direct debit mandates at its request and free of charge which the payment services user may have with the Bank.

The Bank shall refund to the payment service user, without delay, any damage suffered by the user in the switching process due to non-compliance of the Bank with the General Terms and Conditions and valid regulations, unless said non-compliance was the result of force majeure.

4. Authorization for payment account management

When opening a payment account, the Client must indicate the names of all the persons authorized to manage the account and/or dispose of the funds in the account. The signature of authorized person must be deposited to the Bank, and the identity of that person must be determined on the basis of personal and other relevant documents. The Client is obliged to familiarize the authorized persons with the contents of these General Terms and Conditions, as well as with the terms of each contract on opening and maintaining the account on which that person is authorized. It is believed that a person who is authorized for the payment account has accepted the General terms and conditions, i.e. the Framework Agreement, at the time of taking his first action related to the payment account such person is authorised for. The Client may authorize one or more persons to perform certain actions on the payment account in which case he shall submit to the Bank the power of attorney on the letterhead of the Client, stamped with the Client's stamp (if so defined by the regulations of the country where the office of the Client is located) and signed by the legal representative of the Client, which authorizes one or more certain persons to perform the actions mentioned above.

If the Client has authorized a person to conclude the framework contract and/or agreement on opening and maintaining of account in his name and on his behalf, the Bank in this case shall identify the authorized person and opens the account on the basis of power of attorney given in written form on the letterhead of the Client, which has been submitted in due and proper form.

The authorized person cannot issue new or revoke the existing authorizations, nor is authorized to close the Client's account, unless the power of attorney expressly states that such person is authorized for this action. In the event of any changes or amendments in respect of persons responsible for the management of the payment account or scope of authority, the Client must inform the Bank without delay together with the delivery of appropriate evidence.

The authorizations and deposited signatures of persons authorized to manage the payment account or handle funds in the account are valid until revocation of the same.

On the day of submitting of any written notice with adequate proof of the dissolution of a business entity, or of the deleting of the company from the relevant register or of the opening of the bankruptcy proceedings, the authorizations and potentially given special power of attorney for managing the account shall cease to be effective, whereas the funds on the account concerned shall be blocked, while the amount of the used funds shall be immediately deemed fully due. Until that moment, the Bank can rely on valid authorizations or powers of attorney and is not liable for the damage that up to that point may be caused to third parties due to the management and disposal of the payment account of the Client by an authorized person or a proxy.

In the above specified manner, the day of receipt of the notification about the opening of the liquidation proceedings and the submission of evidence of selection or appointment of the liquidation trustee, all the authorizations i.e. powers of attorney for managing of the payment account shall cease to be valid, for the individuals who were authorised to manage the Client's account before the opening of the liquidation procedure, but who were not chosen in the process of liquidation by the founder, or appointed by the competent court to perform the function of liquidation administrator.

The authorized person can independently close the account only against a special authorization, as well as if all the accounts have positive or zero balance.

In the event the Client holds one or more payment accounts with the bank, the Bank is authorized at any time, in accordance with relevant regulations, to compensate any claims from the Client against the obligations it has towards the Client.

By accepting these General Terms and Conditions, the Client authorizes the Bank to debit all Client's accounts with the Bank, regardless of the currency of the same, for the purpose of settlement of claims the bank has towards the Client, arising on any ground. In the event that the settlement of the Bank will charge the foreign currency accounts of the customer, when calculating the Bank shall apply the current buying rate of the Bank for foreign currency on the date the account is debited.

5. Payment transactions

The Bank provides payment services in local and foreign currency, in the country and abroad, and is irrevocably authorized to accept payments on behalf of the Client, and the client can use the funds from the account in the amount of available funds, all in accordance with the General terms and conditions and the applicable legislation.

In order to provide the services that are the subject of the contract on opening and maintenance of payment account, the Bank assigns a unique identification code to the Client, which is required for each payment transaction. A unique identifier is also the number of the payment account of the Client, which is used for the provision of payment services.

The payment transactions that are the subject of the contract on opening and maintenance of payment account can be made only with the correct guidance of the unique identification mark. It is believed that the payment order was properly implemented if the Bank executes the order in accordance with the unique identifier specified in the order (the payer and/or payment recipient). If the Client provides the Bank with incorrect unique identifier or any other defective or incorrect important element of the payment order, or fails to perform the authorization, the Bank shall not be responsible towards the Client for the proper and timely execution of orders. If the payment order is given a unique identifier without any other prescribed information or if other specified data do not correspond to a given label, the Bank shall execute the order under the unique identification label, if it meets the other agreed conditions for its execution, and in such a case the Bank shall be liable only for the execution of the payment transactions in accordance with the unique identifier.

For the avoidance of doubt, these General Terms and Conditions do not regulate the execution of one-off payment transactions, because such transactions are being executed without the opening of a payment account with the Bank and are regulated by payment orders. Payment transaction is determined by the payment order. Payment orders are: a pay-in order, a pay-out order and transfer order, whereas the payment orders for foreign currency payments are: payment order, billing order and general foreign currency order. Payment orders consist of at least two copies, where at the Client's request, with the consent of the Bank, the transfer order can consist of only one copy. The order must be valid, legible and authorized by the Client in the agreed manner. The Client is responsible for the completeness and accuracy of the information specified in the payment order, and shall, prior to giving consent (authorization) for the order; check the elements and the content of the payment order which initiates the payment transaction and/or a series of payment transactions.

The Bank shall execute a payment order if the following conditions have been met:

- if the payment order is correct;
- if the correct documentation is submitted together with the payment order, if necessary from the point of view of foreign exchange transactions or prevention of money laundering and terrorist financing;
- If the payment account has sufficient funds to pay the entire amount of the order or if the Client who makes the payment of cash to its payment account hands over to the Bank the cash in the amount necessary for the execution of orders and fees, unless otherwise agreed for each additional specific service;
- if the payment order was approved in an agreed manner.

The Bank reserves the right to request from the Client additional information related to the payment transaction, if such an obligation arises from the regulations governing the prevention of money laundering and terrorist financing, regulations governing foreign exchange transactions or internal documents of the Bank enacted according to these regulations. If the execution of payment transactions is denied, it shall be deemed that the payment order was not received, and if the Client corrects the deficiencies in the payment order and it meets the requirements for execution, it shall be deemed that the corrected order was submitted as a new order, and the bank shall commence with the execution of an order in accordance with these General Terms and Conditions. In the event that on the payment account, which is not blocked, there are not enough funds for the execution of the transfer order, the Bank will not refuse the order if the customer manages to ensure the necessary funds within 2 working days on the account for the execution of payment transactions. In this situation, the day of execution of the order is the day when the Client provided the funds onto the bank account and put them at the Bank's disposal. In a situation that within due time the Client fails to ensure the necessary funds on the account, to commencement of the execution of the order is considered to be the first following business day after the expiration of the above mentioned deadline.

The payments to foreign countries and foreign collections can be made by remittance, documentary letter of credit, documentary collection, other payment instruments that are used in international payment transactions, in accordance with applicable regulations. The Bank receives payment orders through its distribution channels, in accordance with the provisions of the opening and maintenance of certain types of payment accounts and other special contracts, the terms for additional services the Bank provides to the Client with regard to such accounts and the provisions of the General Terms and Conditions. The time of receipt of the payment order is the time when the Bank has received an order directly from the payer or indirectly from the recipient of the payment. The high time to receive the order is defined by the Time schedule which is an integral part of the Framework agreement. The payment order received by the Bank after the deadline prescribed by the Schedule shall be deemed as received on the following working day. If the Client has specifically agreed the day of execution of the order with the Bank, the time of receipt of the order shall be deemed to be the day of the agreed commencement of the execution of the order. If the payment order is received on the day that is not a working day at the Bank, it shall be deemed received on the following working day.

The payment transaction is considered to be authorized if the payer has given consent to execute the payment transaction or to execute a series of payment transactions which incorporates this specific payment transaction, and after the Bank has carried out the authentication process for the payment transactions for which the Client has given its consent. The manner of granting the approval for the execution of a payment transaction depends on the payment instrument and the distribution channel of the Bank. The Client gives its consent to execute the payment transaction initiated by:

- in the Bank's premises - by signing the order,
- at the recipient of the payment - by signing the orders,
- by e-banking.

Granting consent for payment transactions initiated in a way that is not defined by the General terms and conditions may be provided by a special contract. It shall be considered that the Client has subsequently given its consent when after the completed transaction he takes the documents from the Bank referring to a specific payment transaction (certificates, payment orders, etc.).

The consent may be revoked until the payment transaction is carried out. The Client may cancel the payment orders in writing or in a manner determined by the account authorization by special agreement for the particular service, where the Bank may require the Client to submit the original order / confirmation of the transaction, the identification document and alike. In this situation, the bank will take reasonable measures to prevent the execution of the order, while respecting the rules of the trade, and reserves the right to charge and collect a special fee for the cancellation of the order. A fee is charged for the revocation of a payment order in accordance with the Tariff of Fees.

For international payment transactions, the Client may request in writing to cancel the payment order at the time and in a way that makes it possible to initiate a cancellation of the execution of the specific payment transactions contained in the order, and may also submit a request for revocation or invalidation after the execution of a payment transaction, in which case the fee is charged according to the Tariff of Fees and there are no guarantees that this attempt will be successful and that the Client shall not suffer the consequences in this regard.

In the event that the payment transaction is initiated by submitting the bills for payment, by the conclusion of a framework agreement i.e. a contract on opening and maintaining of the account and by the acceptance of the general conditions, the Client gives irrevocable consent to the Bank to execute the payment transaction initiated in this way by a promissory note creditor, by debiting the payment accounts of the Client.

The Bank may debit the payment account of the Client without the Client's payment order in the following cases:

If a user has more than two payment accounts (in local or foreign currency), the Bank is entitled to the right to determine, at its discretion, the order in which to collect the funds for settlement of any contractual obligation, and to collect the funds by offsetting the balance of all payment accounts of the Client with the Bank.

In case the transfer is made from the foreign currency account of the Client, when calculating the Bank shall apply the current middle rate of the Bank for foreign currency on that date.

The refunds to be done in some cases of improper execution of payment transactions (transferred more funds than the amount indicated on the payment order, repeatedly executed payment order or funds that are transferred to another recipient of payments) has priority over the execution of all other payment transactions from the payment account to which the funds are transferred.

Payment service providers execute instant payments in their capacity as the payer's provider of payment services and/or the payee's provider of payment services.

The Bank, as a provider of payment services, executes instant payments as the payee's provider of payment services only.

The Bank does not execute instant payments as the payer's provider of payment services.

As the payee's provider of payment services, the Bank is obliged, once it has received order for the execution of a particular instant payment, to establish without delay whether conditions for the execution of the orders have been met in accordance with the applicable regulations and provisions of the Framework Agreement. If all conditions for the execution of the order have been duly met, the Bank shall accept it, for which an affirmative answer shall be delivered to the payee's provider of payment services. Upon receiving notification that the order has been executed in the payment system, the Bank shall credit the payee's payment account indicated in the payment order and allow for disposal of the funds, of which the payee shall be notified via email.

In the event that conditions for the execution of a particular order have not been met, the Bank shall deliver a negative answer to the payer's provider of payment services along with reasons for the non-acceptance of the relevant order. In this case, or in case that the time allotted for the delivery of an answer has elapsed, the execution of the instant payment order shall be rejected in the payment system of which both the payer's and the payee's service providers shall be notified by the National Bank of Serbia, as the payment system operator.

The payer's provider of payment services has the right to initiate the payee's service provider a refund, based on any executed instant payment if the payment order in question was executed several times, if the amount was higher than that indicated on the order, if funds were transferred to a payee different from that indicated on the order or if the relative transfer was executed in error due to technical difficulty or for any other reason duly stated by the payer. The Bank, as the payee's provider of payment services, is obliged to refund the funds based on the refund request, in accordance with applicable regulations, or to refuse the request in which case the Bank shall state its reasons.

Other provisions of these General Terms and Conditions shall be applied to all issues not defined in this section.

It shall be deemed that the Bank has provided the Client with the required information by delivering the account statement in the agreed manner.

In the case of a payment transaction initiated by the Client or through the Client's recipient of payment, a payment service provider of such payment recipient shall be liable towards the receiver for the proper delivery of the payment order to the Bank, and if the amount of the payment transaction is credited to the account of the provider of payment services of the recipient of the payment, he is liable towards the recipient for the proper execution of the payment transaction.

In these cases, the Client shall bear all the losses.

The Bank shall always require clear and explicit instructions (orders) from the Client for the execution of payment transactions in the country and abroad, made in writing, specifying the purpose of payment.
